Dale Minami, a lawyer and activist of national stature, headed the legal team that reversed the wartime convictions of Fred Korematsu, Min Yasui, and Gordon Hirabayashi. He co-founded the Asian Law Caucus, and the nation's first Asian American bar association. He fought a multi-year, multi-forum tenure battle that secured the place of Asian American Studies in the university curriculum. He was a founding member of the Asian Bar Association of Sacramento. The ABAS Law Foundation is proud to be able to present him in our 2017 speaker series.

ABAS LAW FOUNDATION PRESENTS... is a series of speakers and events designed to provoke discussion and inform the public on often-overlooked subjects such as civic responsibility, our unjust bail system, human trafficking, dissent at the notorious Tule Lake concentration camp, and our nation's unconstitutional wartime actions.
